Consultation VAT

I believe that the zero vat rate on nutritional supplements should remain in place.

I have two family members that are currently very ill and conventional pharma products do not work where as the nutritional supplements they are taking make a huge difference to their daily lives.

As none of these wonderful products are not covered in any way by perscription the have to bear the full cost.

If vat is applied even at a reduced rate it would have an enormous effect on them and would be totally unfair to someone who is trying to deal with the issues they have.

I am putting forward my views as someone who is living with this on a daily basis and if vat is introduced would have to deal with increased financial burden for something that is benifiting the health of my family members.

Regards
