

"Treasa Lynch"

13/01/2015 10:18

To <seanadreformwg@taoiseach.gov
.ie>

cc

Subject re: Seanad electorate

A chairde,

The seventh amendment to the constitution has never been actually transposed into legislation .

While I would favour a general vote for the second house , in the interim and in the scope of what is currently possible under the constitution, reform should include broadening the electorate. This can be done by increasing the number of third level institutions whose graduates have a vote for Seanad candidates in the interim.

Regards,

Treasa Lynch