Rahm keeps Irish eyes smiling

n Rahm popped over to London to take a bit of tennis at Wimbledon but the ne out from golf will be a brief one, and a Spaniard - who has become someng of an influencer in terms of promotinish in the sourses - will be back here ring the week to continue his preparation for next week's 148th British Open at yal Portrush.

in the aftermath of his latest DDF Irish in the aftermath of his latest ODF Irish en success, Rahm's words of praise for higolf were like something that had nifed to him by a marketer in Tourism word "great" featured quite a lot, as a great golf course," he said of

Anyway, Rahm's decision to return to these shores in the coming days to get a further flavour of links golf is something of a throwback given that Tom Watson, Tiger Woods, Mark O'Meara and Stewart Cink- who actually numbered Lathinch among the prep courses he played ahead of winning his Claret Jug – all visited freland in their prep work ahead of lathing in the Open.

Rahm certainly ticked all the boxes in Rahm certainly ticked all the boxes in government of the progression of the pr a great tournament," he said of the pen. "It's a great host country," he Ireland.

"When I come here, I feel like I'm at home, the support is unbelievable. I'm going to start believing it's because of Kelley, Here last name is Cahili and she's from this county originally.

Her mom's last name is McClean, so there's a lot of Irish in her family, so a little bit of that Irish luck when I come."

Apart from that great golf game, it would seem Rahm also has the gift of the gab; which is not a bad thing at all.

McGinley rules out hosting again next year

McIlroy to resume competitive play at Scottish Open alongside Dunne, McDowell and Harrington anything the success of the whola Duty Free Irish Open at ablinch - where the aggregate tendance figures of 86,793 ere augmented by the wonder-la amosphere, the quality of la course and a gold-star chamon in Jon Rahm - only served underline the ability to think triside the box to make things ork.

Paul McGinley, the tournament host, deserves great credit for daring to take the championship to Lahinch, where the host club, Clare County Council and the Garda worked with the PGA European Tour to ensure it maintained its reputation as one of the premier events on circuit this side of the Atlantic.

However, McGinley has ruled himself out of doing back-to-back hosting duties. And while he has a role in some decision-making at European Tour level as he is a member of the board and the tournament committee, the Dubliner will not be as closely involved in the mechanisms for next year's tournament at a time and place yet to be decided.

"The condensed schedule next year, it's put a challenge on us. Next year is accentuated by the fact it's an Olympic year and the Ryder Cup year. standing that the PGA Tour wants to move forward the WGC-St Jude Classic to the same date in the calendar currently occupied by the Irish Open On the last occasion such a clash happened (when the then WGC-Bridgestone was held directly against the French Open) the European Tour decided not to award Ryder Cuppoints to its players who competed in Akron over Paris. "Idon't know if that would really work to be honest," said McGinley when asked if that could be the case again in the event of a clash next year. "We're working very closely with the PGA Tour, a lot closer than we have ever done. Relations between the PGA and European Tours are really strong, harmonious. I know this date, this Irish Open, is high on the agenda in the communication between Keith and Jay Monahan, of the PGA Tour]." That meeting between the two tour chiefs is scheduled to take place at Royal Portrush enacterer picture will emerge on the wow or if a clash can be averted.

Matthew Wolff's reputation as the next-great-thing in golf was given some credence with the 20-year-old's win in the 3M championship on the PGA Tour in just his third outing as a professional... and you can only wonder how JP Fitzgerald felt about it all.

Fitzgerald, of course, was the bagman for Roy McIlroy through his four carreer Major wins before getting the elbow just about two years ago and had stayed away from looping until a couple of weeks ago when he carried the bag for Wolff in The Travelers championship in what was seen as a unial run. Unfortunately for him, Fitzgerald didn't get the gig. And Wolff's remarkable breakthrough win-quicker even than that of Tiger Woods back in the day was achieved with a new caddie, Steve Lohmeyer, on the job.

Fitzgerald misses out on Wolff's win
